INSTITUTE FOR GLOBAL HEALTH AND DEVELOPMENT

PhD Bursary Competition Institute for Global Health and Development

Applications are invited for a research training bursary (i.e. A PhD plus Doctoral Certificate in Researcher Enhancement and Development). IGHD sits within the School of Health Sciences at Queen Margaret University, Edinburgh. The Institute for Global Health and Development encourages applications for doctoral study related to its ongoing work in fragile and conflict-affected settings. We particularly encourage applications related to the following topics:

- BUR 22-18    Ethnographic study of the provision of health services to politically marginalised populations in a specified fragile and conflict-affected setting.
(Dr Georgina Pearson and Dr Arek Dakessian)
- BUR 22-19    The politics of aid in fragile and conflict-affected settings and its impact on processed of health system reform.
(Dr Maria Bertone)

The successful applicant will be working within a highly skilled team of subject experts and will receive:

- full waiver of tuition fees.
- an annual stipend of £15,609 lasting 3 years for full-time study.
- a research budget of £2000 to cover project expenses and travel.

In addition to this bursary opportunity, CASS welcomes applications for co-supervision of students registered at other institutions or with external funding at any time. Self-funded and externally registered students would have more flexibility in the topic of their research and should contact relevant potential supervisors.

The deadline for applications is Friday 11 March 2022. Visit our Bursary Competition web page for more information.
